MEDIA INFORMATION

Credentials

Space for working media and visiting scouts is allocated by the Liberty Bowl's press committees and accredited media requiring credentials must direct inquiries to the Liberty Bowl office. Mail requests to the Liberty Bowl, 4735 Spottswood, Suite 102, Memphis, TN 38117, or call (901) 767-7700.

Will Call Window

If you cannot pick up your credentials in advance, you may pick them up at the "Will Call" Window at the Liberty Bowl main ticket office on the east side. The credentials will be there approximately two hours before kickoff.

Press Box Location

The press box is located on the west side of the stadium and pre-assigned press parking is just outside the press entrance by the elevator. Nobody will be admitted without proper credentials and no requests will be honored at the gate. All requests must be made in advance. The first level is for working media, statistical crew, and Liberty Bowl staff and encompasses approximately 58 media seats. The second level includes home and visiting radio and the third level is for television and photographers locations. There is elevator service to all three levels, but be reminded there is only one elevator and it is very slow. Thus, you must leave the press box in advance to beat the crowd in order to get to the locker rooms in the south tunnel. The elevator will be held for media on the first level two minutes prior to the end of the game for those wishing early exit from the press box. If you are returning to the press box after a locker room interview, please inform the press box supervisor at the stat area. The first level will be kept open until all media have conducted their business.

Credential Criteria

The Liberty Bowl will issue credentials for the first level, according to the following criteria.

1. Major dailies who cover competing teams on a regular basis. No more than one credential for a newspaper except those that are considered to be hometown dailies.
2. Major national dailies from the Memphis area.
3. Major national dailies from outside the Memphis area.
4. Weeklies and smaller dailies from competing team's area will be processed on a priority basis by the team's SID and the Liberty Bowl press committee.
5. Please note that no media personnel or scouts will be permitted to bring guests, family or other non-accredited types. Cheering is not permitted in the press box and will not be tolerated.

Photographers

The photo deck is on the third level but passes are also for sideline access. Photographers wishing rosters and related media information will be able to pick up such material either in the press box before the game or from the sideline press box spotter.

Telephone Services

There are pay telephones available in the press box and media wishing their own lines must make their own arrangements with South Central Bell. A technician will be on duty throughout the game to provide writers assistance with their telephones.

Statistical Services

Complete stats, programs, media guides and flip cards will be provided to all media on all levels by runners and if you have special requests, please discuss them with the press box supervisor prior to the game. Refreshments and food will be available in the press box on all levels.

If you have any service requirements beyond the normally supplied services, you must make prior arrangements the week before with the Liberty Bowl press committee.

Post-game quotes will be supplied from coaches and players from both locker rooms and will be included in the stat book for general dissemination. If you need such service, request it specifically from the press box supervisor prior to the game.

Post-Game Locker Room Policy

Both locker rooms will be opened to accredited media with proper credentials about 10 minutes after the game is concluded. This is to allow for a reasonable waiting period. Because of the crowded conditions in both locker rooms, each head coach will be positioned in the coaches dressing room to allow for more room for interviews. Shower area and training room areas are "off limits" to all media.

Liberty Bowl Has Grown in Stature Through the Years

From the snow and ice of Philadelphia . . . to the Atlantic Convention Center . . . to the friendly confines of Memphis.

The 27-year history of the Liberty Bowl is rich with tradition and enough memories to fill several scrapbooks. It is a bowl game that has grown with each year and today it is generally regarded as one of the finest events in the country — not only in terms of the kind of football played but the manner in which visiting teams are treated when they come to Tennessee's largest city to spend the holidays.

Other bowl games may boast larger stadiums and games which have a more direct bearing on the national championship. The Liberty Bowl, however, has developed a tradition for exciting and entertaining games that any bowl would want.

It is a bowl with a different kind of theme. Nowhere else will you find a post-season bowl which evokes such strong themes of patriotism. For 26 years, fans have waved their flags during Liberty Bowl halftime shows and no matter how many times the scene is repeated . . . it still gives everyone a thrill.

The first five Liberty Bowls were played in frigid Philadelphia, beginning with that memorable inaugural game in 1959 when Penn State blanked Alabama 7-0. In 1964, a crowd of 6,000 showed up at Atlantic City's Convention Center to watch Utah knock off West Virginia 32-6. It was an artistic success but financially it was a disaster. Bud Dudley immediately began a search for a new city and as luck would have it, he only visited one of the cities on his list — Memphis. After visiting with the late Harry Pierotti, Jimmy Moore and Early Maxwell, he was convinced to move the game to Memphis.

A crowd of 39,000 turned out in chilly weather to watch that first Liberty Bowl game played in Memphis in 1965. Ole Miss knocked off Auburn 13-7 and it was obvious that the Liberty Bowl had found a permanent home.

Dudley doesn't possess a magic wand to make the games exciting but the trademark of the bowl through the years has been just that. The game has had a knack for capturing television audiences and providing fans with football excitement at its best.

Through the years, the script has remained the same. Even when some experts didn't figure the matchups would be particularly exciting . . . the games always turn out to be better than anyone thought possible.

Upsets?

The Liberty Bowl has had its share of surprising games but perhaps three stand out above the rest . . . 1970, 1972 and 1976.

In 1970, an upstart Tulane team did the unthinkable. It came into a game against highly-regarded Colorado sky-high with emotion and shocked the Buffaloes 17-3.

In 1972, the Liberty Bowl matchup was affectionately dubbed by the media as the "Lemon Bowl" because of the so-called poor credentials of the two teams competing — Iowa State and Georgia Tech. The Yellow-jackets' starting quarterback, Eddie McAshan, was suspended from the team and the folks at Tech had plenty of reason for being discouraged about their team's chances.

As it turns out, the Jackets' fill-in at quarterback was more than adequate. Jim Stevens stepped in and led his team to a remarkable 31-30 victory.

Finally, in 1976 there was the remarkable performance by Coach Bear Bryant's Alabama team against one of the strongest UCLA teams ever coached by Terry Donahue. The Bruins came into the game with a glittering 9-1-1 record, having just missed out on a trip to the Rose Bowl. Maybe it was the 25-degree weather that discouraged most of the players but the Bruins were thrashed 36-6 in a game which had to surprise even the oddsmakers.

And so it goes.

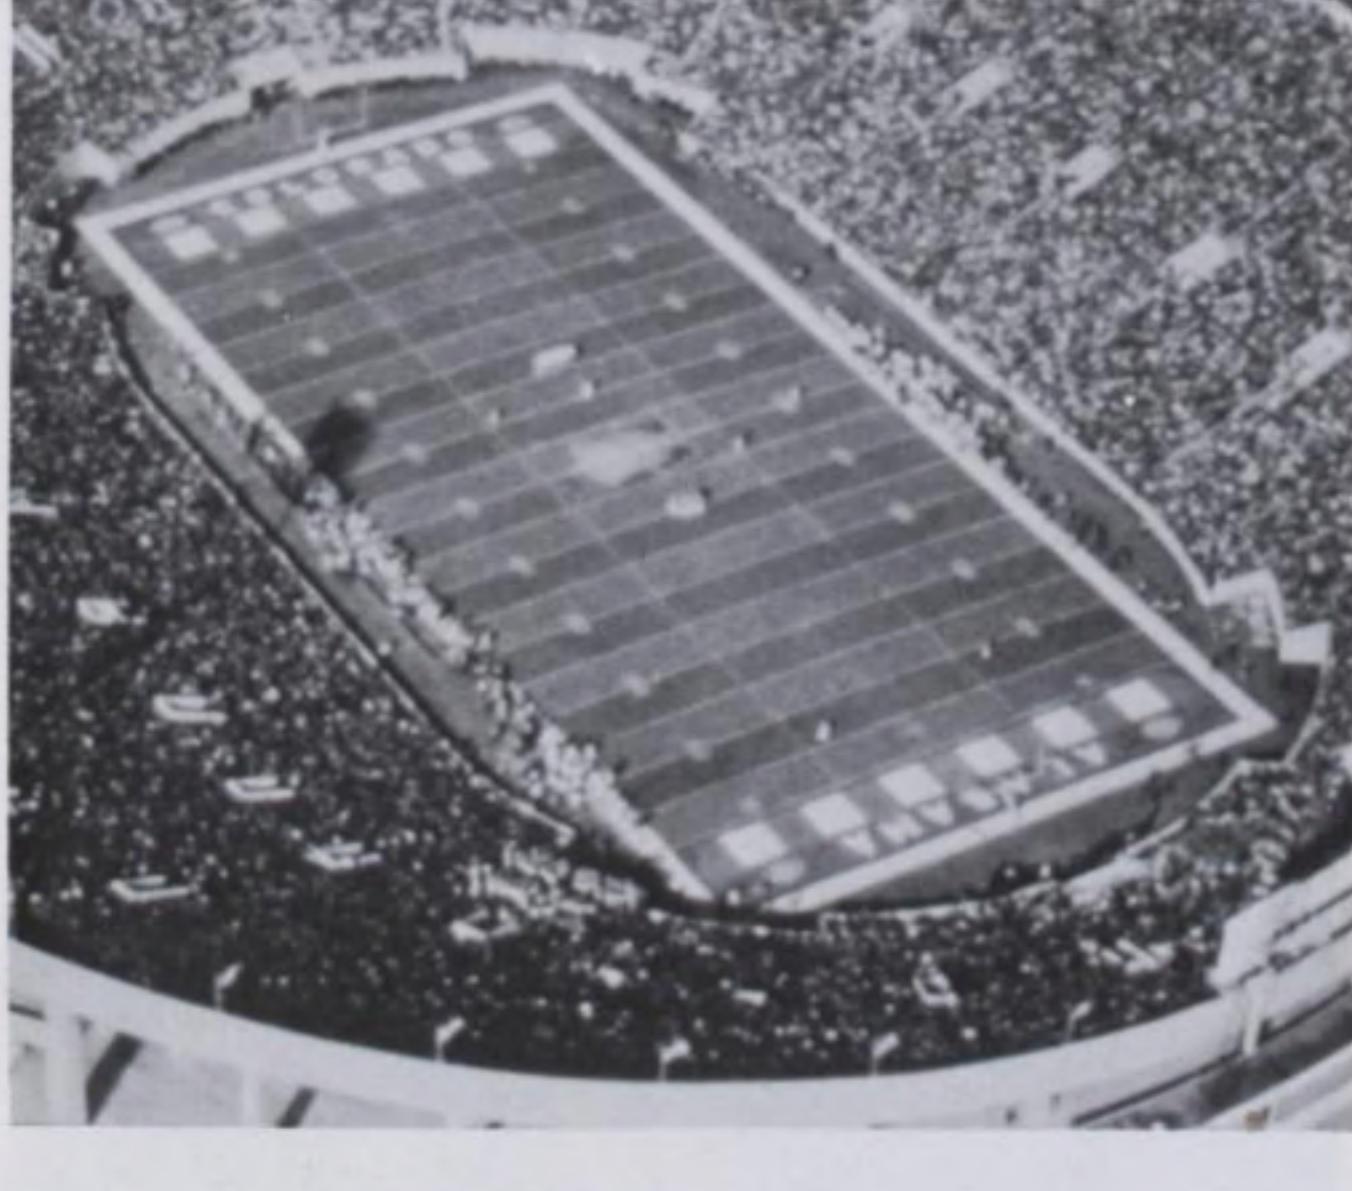

Each year has had its share of drama and no matter what kind of adversity befalls a team, the outcome always proves that the Liberty Bowl fathers knew what they were doing. Or maybe they were just lucky. Who knows?

"We don't pretend to be the greatest experts in the world in knowing how to put together a bowl matchup," said Bud Dudley in something of an understatement. "But I can assure you that we have been extremely lucky through the years in being able to come up with some great matchups. You take chances in this business and hope that your judgement is accurate."

Obviously, somebody is doing something right in the Liberty Bowl office.

Any bowl which can survive the media onslaught of the 1982 Liberty Bowl game between Alabama and Illinois can handle any kind of extra pressure.

The 1982 matchup, of course, was the famed Bear Bryant's last appearance as the head coach of Alabama. More than 200 media representatives from across the nation converged on Memphis and it was no easy chore handling the requests. The Liberty Bowl, however, prides itself on dishing out Southern hospitality no matter how difficult the situation.

New Developments and Attractions Make Memphis A City On The Move

Like the Mississippi River flowing past its front door, Memphis is a city on the move. In the past five years more than half a billion dollars has been invested in downtown development, including construction of Mud Island, the exciting river park and entertainment complex; the renovation of The Peabody, the South's grand hotel; and the rebirth of Beale Street, home of the blues.

The most conspicuous example of the city's renaissance is Mud Island, the dazzling $63 million complex on an island in the Mississippi. Since its opening in 1982, sleek monorails have whisked some 2.2 million people over the river to this attraction, the only one in the world to showcase the recreational, educational and cultural aspects of the mighty Mississippi. Visitors can dip their toes in the River Walk, a flowing, five-block-long scale model of the lower Mississippi, and can board an authentic life-size replica of an 1980's steamboat in the Mississippi River Museum.

A few blocks away, five ducks splashing in a fountain have become world-famous symbols of Southern hospitality. The Peabody Hotel, built in 1925, recently underwent a painstaking six-year renovation resulting in a perfect blend of new facilities and old traditions. Every morning, the Peabody ducks ride the elevators down from their rooftop penthouse and waddle along a red carpet to the lobby, where they spend the day swimming and quacking. One prominent writer has called this "the most beguiling custom I ever saw."

The Orpheum Theatre, a former vaudeville palace, has been transformed into a beautiful center for the performing arts. Broadway shows, concerts and special events set amidst gorgeous brocade tapestries, massive crystal chandeliers, and brilliant gilt decoration make a night at the Orpheum an unforgettable experience.

The Orpheum stands at the foot of Beale Street, the famed birthplace of the blues. Here W. C. Handy and his trumpet made musical history with the "Beale Street Blues," "Memphis Blues" and other classics. Today, the old honky-tonks, bars, and pawnshops have been revitalized into enticing new restaurants, nightspots, theaters and shops.

Complementing these developments are other major attractions throughout the city that continue to delight residents and visitors alike. Guided tours of Graceland, Elvis Presley's beloved home, allow devoted fans an inside look at the lifestyle of the "King of Rock and Roll." Nestled among the 345 wooded acres of Overton Park is the Memphis Zoo and Aquarium, one of the finest in the country. Victorian Village, a collection of architectural masterpieces, stands as an impressive reminder of the beauty and culture of a bygone age. And action-packed rides and enchanting stage shows thrill the whole family at Libertyland theme park.

The complete spectrum of entertainment in Memphis also includes the Memphis Pink Palace Museum, Memphis Brooks Museum of Art, Chucalissa Indian Village, the shops and restaurants of Overton Square, Memphis Queen Line riverboat excursions, Adventure River water park, Southland Greyhound Park dog racing and other exciting attractions.
